HARVEST : Late. The grape varietal has a high level of “colatura” (early fall at ripening) and a low fruit set the yield is very low. Moscato Rosa grapes must not be attacked by botrytis cinerea the core being a slow drying like they were raisins. That is possible only by favoring the drying up of bunches on the vines.

VINO: grapes are pressed and de-stalked and left macerating for 30 days. Fermentation on indigenous yeast resident on the bunches. Alcoholic fermentation usually takes about 4 weeks. After the fermentation the malolactic is induced by a slight increase in temperature of the fermenters. This transformation will last for about 20 days after which wines is racked and left in stainless steel tanks where fining will take place on fine lees for a minimum of 2 years, in order to get a natural proteic stability that will give the elegance and the personality that make this wine distinguish and unique. Bottled without filtration, rests in oak chests of 510 bottles and left to fine even more.

- Alcohol developed: 13,20% vol.
- Total Acidity: 6,38 g/l

DESCRIPTION :

Noble antique rare precious wine that has nothing to share with Moscato Giallo and Bianco. From a Rose color with coppery shades, the bouquet is very aromatic with nose of roses at first and then of aromatic fragrances. The wine delivers an outstanding elegance, very expressive and persistent, with a warm sinuous body with typical notes of fruits, linden tree and bergamot.

Wine for the haute cuisine, for cold and hot dishes based on pate de foi gras and for dishes of high refinement it expresses is best of its personality in every occasion.
